TRAVELS TO FLORIDA IN

Have All Comforts of Home in Traveling in Ford Auto

WRITES OF HIS TRIP

H. D. Hughes, formerly of Antioch and now residing in Gurnee, is the owner of probably one of the mest unique automobites in extstence. Mr. and Mrs. Hughes spend much of their time intraveling vin automobile, and Mr. Hughes has built a machine to meet alt their travet requirements.

The muchine is practically a bungalow on wheels. The bedy is made over from a Red Cross ambutance. The rear quarter of the ambulance body cut of and mounted on a 1921 Ford chassis. Within the car is room for a bed, a folding table, kerosene steve, two large storerooms, enpuble of helding a week's supply of feed, and many other conveniences only to be had in this machine. Lace curtains adern the windows, and they are sereened in, but there is weater-proof curtains also in case of save weather.

Last winter Mr. and Mrs. Hughes metared to Flerida via Washington, D. C., and en Thursday of the past week left for St. Andrews Florida, and expects to spend the winter months moloring in the southlands. Mr. Hughes stopped at The Antiech News office before leaving and promised to write many letters of his trip. The first of the letters were received on Monday. It follows:

"We left Gurnes at 8 a. m. and started off for a warmer climate. Got through Chicago over the west side boulevard and park system, for our car, though it tooks like a traffic wagon, always passes the cops as a touring car. The snow was all gope before we reached the city and we were glad of it. The air was plenty cool enough without it. "Running over the Dixle highway to Danville, Ill., which we reached at 4:30 p. m., we went toto camp in the city's free touring camp. Six other cars were there on their way to warmer elimato. Some on their wedding trip and home like ourselves, 70 years young, going to where we can enjoy things nelittle better out of doors without fraczing our fingers.

We noticed that the melons were rozea just as hadly as back in Lake county. We slept as warmly in the ear as we would have in our bungalew at home. We had meant to go by way of Catro, but from what seemed good authority we decided on the Lautsville, Ky., route. A paved RUN FIRST STORY road so far.

"We broke camp at Danville at ? a: m., after a good night'e aleep and a breaktast of oatmeal and steak with the addition of some of my wife's most axcellent bisenits, and she also, at that time, made up some sandwiches for our midday lunch, which we ato as we rolled along over the very good but dusty gravel roads of Indiana. We fellowed the Dixie Highway to Crawfordville then turned south on good advice and run over state road 32 to Bloomington thru Greeneastte and then an 22 to Bedford. And now are in camp three miles south of that town. Here is where the colebrated Bedford Stone for building purposes is quarried. And the guarries are so close to the highway that travelocs are warned to watch out for fear of damage from flying rack. South of Crawfordsville we saw the first Turkey Buzzards wheeling high over-head in the bine. Farther south they are very plontyint hut we never saw one toolish enough to try it up in Laka county. The contrast between two days travel in temperature is very marked. The sun is just going down as I pound this out on a Corona. The scenery has been paper one of the best serial stories very pleasing att the way from Dan- aver printed. As soon as the story ville but the frost killed the melons was announced last week much comas dead as in litinois and Indiana as ment was received in regard to the it did up to Lake county. The one selection of this serial, and as a redining room and kitchen."

Herodotus mentions this autumn custom of thanksgiving, and Homer writes that "cakes and lumps of dough thrown at the head of the sacrificial victim formed a part of the Greek offerings of Apollo, the sun-god, at the feast of the lugathering."

In ancient times Apollo received the honors of the harvest festival, but the rustles sacrificed to Vacuan, the goddess. Images of Vacuna were made were carried about with singing and date. Call Waukegan 237 or 238. 611 cheering. Even in England images made of straw crowned with flowers are occasionally carried about and called Ceres-the goddess of agriculture. Apollo was formerly worshiped la Britain, and the Maypole is a pretty relle of those days. They decorated it with garlands to welcome the northward coming of Apollo-the sun-at whose appearance the flowers and fruit hegan to grow.

Various customs, all containing the same idea, have prevailed in different countries. In Scotland, when the roapers have flaished their work, a small package of corn, called the "Corn Lady," is hung up in the house. The ancient Egyptians offered sacrifices and made offerings of corn and wine to Leith, the mother of the sun. Wheat, according to both sacred and secular history, was the most importunt grain grown in Egypt, and the mode of harvesting it is interesting. Instead of the usual method the reapers cut the straw just below the hends. It was carried in bags to the threshing floor, where it was trodden out by oxen. Sometimes the wheat was reaped in the usual way and bound up in sheaves, but oxen were always employed to separate the wheat from the straw. The chief festivals of the Egyptians, however, were n connection with the overflow of the

The Teutons and Scandlanvians offered sacrifices to Frey, the god of the rain and the suashine.

What is known as "the shouting of the churn" comes down from the time when Apollo was worshiped in England. The churn or kern means a rlog or circle formed by several persons holding hands. The word churn also signifies- a chaplet worn around the hend or carried suspended on a pole in procession. So "the shouting of the churn" means the merriment that always accompanied wearing a chaplet or dancing in a circle.

Another old custom is the "kempng" of England, in Scotland called "a Mell is sometimes spelled melee, which is better, as a melee, or often resulted from contending leadership in dispatching the last day's work in the field. Each reaper left a handful of the harvest uneut; and the bonulest lass was allowed to gather these handfuls and to make out of there a "corn baby." This was brought home in triumph, set up in the fenst and preserved for the remainder of the year. The lass was called the harvest queen. Sometimes instead of being made into a doll the products of the field would be formed into a mare, and the reapers would nmuse the guests by trying to cut down the mare with their sickles. The man, who succeeded in the undertaking would declare what should be done with the mare.

Jesus Attitude Toward Miracles

(The third of a series of studies in miraclos, delivered at the Mis E. church Sunday evening, Nov 4.)

In spite of the increased knowledge of the world and of life given us by sclence, our ago is extramely childish in its clinsing after wonders. Any good erook ean open up a shop, and do a rushing business in wonders and pscudo-miracles. This seems to be one of the symptoms of the unsettled nerve so caused by the late war. The Spiritualists are doing a thriving business, and every kindred movement is getting adherents from our own churches. And these movements ere hooming now in a feverish atmosphere, because our people have been altogether too often led to imaging that religion is to be courted according to the prevalence of the miraculous associated with it. The miraculous in the New Testament has been misunderstood, partly as to its naturo and mero largely as to Its importance. Jesus said of those who came to see him do wonders, "As evil and adultgrous generation seaketh after a sign." Jesus did not want to perform miracles, and did not seek the chanco to perform them. We have several places in the New Testament where it is evident that he went away from the crowds that were out to see his mighty works. Teaching spiritual truths was the central passion of Jeaus. If he performed miracles of healing, it was only because his compassion compelled him to relieve suffering, or aid those in distress, and evan then he often asked the recipients of his invor not to tell folks about his acts. Matthow 8:4 is an example of his anxiety to avoid publicity.

The templations of Jesus Illustrate his attitude. Jesus had gone down to the Jordon and, with the crowd, had heen buptised by John as a mark of his loyalty to the purpose of Jehn's messago and mission. Somehow he had come to feel that God wanted him for a great task, and overwhelmed by the magnitude of the task as he came to see it, he went away into the wilderness to be alone as he settled with his Father the way in which ho was to do that great work. Somo folks do not want to see this exporienco as a natural one, but perhaps think Jesus went out there to see how long he could go without eating. In the intensity of his meditation, and the abandon of his communion with God la prayer over His future, he had not thought to eat, and not when the forty days were over, he hungared. He was bouyed up by the certainty of

It takes a quality roofing to stand up under all conditions. Vulcanite Asphalt Shingles are heavy, rigid, tough and strong. Even the highest wind cannot "ruffle" their weather-proof surface. They not only resist fire and defy summer's heat and winter's freezing, but add beauty to any home.

Why take chances with an inflammable roof or an inferior one that may quickly develop leaks, ruin interior decorations and require expensive repairing. Buy Vulcanite and be sure of roofing satisfaction. Ask us for samples and prices.

CHAPTER 1

Mrs. Penfield, Manager. Mrs. Penfield's house had originally seen a barn; but it had chanced to come up in the world as Mrs. Penfield went down, and they had met and joined forces to make a home where none had been intended. The only feature which had not suffered change was the main door, a huge sliding shalr that precluded front windows and was like no other door for blocks around, belonging to the type that had gone out with the practleal passing of the herse.

If fortune led you that way, you performed an operation on a small crank similar to grinding the morning coffee, a hell jungled, and in no time at all the big door creaked aside, and there was the plump figure of Mrs, Penfield. Her brown eyes had a look of youth that belled the frongray, of her hair; and the cheerful curve of her lips gave you a welcome that preceded the words-because always she asked you to "come right in." Your name, your husiness, were secondary matters; you were first of all a human being and therefore in-

It. was Monday afternoon. Mrs. Penfield had started the second washing of the day, when Crink returned from school and bounded into the lenn-to kitchen.

"Goodness mel" she exclaimed in dismay. "Look what you've done, and those are the last stockings you impulses in her nature had accumugot to your name!"

Orlnk twisted his spine obediently attack of philanthropy. When Mrs. and looked down with every appearance of surprise. "Geel" he said. "It most in' been when I clumb that "I could 'most have guessed it," she herself descended upon this hetagreed Mrs. Penfield mildly. "Folks erogenlety, divided it rapidly into make lots of trouble for other folks, leaving their fences so careless." She examined the stocking with critieal eyes. It was full of crisscross runs, each representing a previous of garments of Miss Geraldice and mishap and materally lessening the total capacity. "I can't never mend it again, Criak, It'd strain right

The boy glanced up in alarm, "Say, Penzle, you don't mean I gotta stay

She laughed, "Land, no! Ain't no matter, of stockings going to stand 'tween you and society, Criok. You just watch those clo'es, that they don't boll over, and I'll make you another pair in two shakes."

From an apple hox in her bedroom, Mrs. Penfield produced a pair of long black hose which had once been the preperty of a maid employed by a certain Mrs. Horntles Wentherstone but which had, been handed down from its original strutum until it had found a further level of usefulness in the household of Mrs. Penfield.

With practical skill she sliced off the Weatherstone garments at the ankle, saving the mended feet for pollshing the stove, and divided the merchandise stale vegetables, shop shandoned its duties and indulged in less into unequal portions, the narrower cut for Thad, the wider for Orink. "'Course," he replied, somewhat inured. "I couldn't make up that name to save me."

Mrs. Penfield's eyes wandered from Thad's small figure to the rude cupboard beyond, but their focus was set on far more distant scenes. "Who could it bo?" she said under het breath. With na effort she pulled herself back to the present.

"And he didn't say who he was?" The boy shook his head. "Didn't nsk hlin, elther. 'Tain't polite," heproclaimed, glving back information which he had previously received. Mrs. Penfield smiled. "No, it wouldn't have been polite, Thad. But I wish I knew who 'twns."

CHAPTER II

The Scaled Package. The wide door of Mrs. Penfield's house admitted one without circumloentlon to the minin room, always with irreproachable propriety spoken of us "the llving-room," Never all apartment more constantly earn its name, By night it was the sleeping quarters of Crink and Thad, when the two long packing boxes; were turned nut from the wall and revealed themselves as kitchen was continually spilling its

The furniture was exceedingly searce; but the walls, through patient accomulation, were rich with diversion for the observer. Crink's connection with the grocery store and his prowling about for east-off treasures, had established avenues of vivid adornment. In a prominent position hung a hunch of bannus with a young Apollo about to cut off a lusclons specimen, a pleture so realistic as to give the visitor a start; young, ladles with Venus complexions and gowns such as The Custard Cup lind never seen in the fabric, smiled graclously at well-spaced intervals; in the corner a vigorous old man, who personally proved that tobacco is conducive to inngevity, urged the beholder to invest immediately in El Juglio eigarettes. "Good morning, Mrs. Bosley. Come right in."

A young woman stood outside. She was carefully groomed, smortly dressed, striking in appearance with ont being exactly pretty. She and her hasband lived in The Custard Cup, but no one could understand why. They were apparently free of all responsibilities and devoted themsalves to good times; in short, they were everything that the other meinbers of the community were not.

"I enn't step, Mrs, Penfield, I'm going downtown, and I wandered if you't let me leave this package with yon. It's got a few trinkets in it, and I'd feel safer."

Mrs. Penfield hesitated. "I hain't got any safe place," she said slowly, "and I'm lo and out- "

Oussle Bosley broke in engerly. "You needn't feel any care about it. Nobody'd take it, but I've got n feellng-I'd rother leave it here. I put a newspaper round it, so 'twouldn't look of any value whatever." She passed over a small package.

Mrs. Penfield took it with some reluctance and corried it into her bedroom. She was accustomed to all sarts of strange requests, but It was the first time she had been asked to guard valuables,

"I expect she thinks mobody'd look liere," Mrs. Penfield reflected; and with that she dismissed the matter altogether and went on out to the yard with her basket. As she wiped the lines, she song under ber breath in sheer blitheaess of spirit, This was the happlest part of her work; she loved the air, the suashine.

"Mornin'," called a rasping voice. "Why, Mr. Wopple, good morning!" she returned briskly. "Aln't it s "Well, pretty fair," conceded Mr Wopple grudgingly, Ho never so far encouraged anything, even the weather, as to give it unqualified approval:

Mr. Wopple was a night watchman in some vague building near the water front; and no one in The Custard Cup questioned his being eminently adapted to exactly that work. Watchfulness was the keynote of his personality; he sacrificed many hours of possible daytime sleep by bringing his professional activities into the home field.

"Yes, It's a grand day," repented Mrs. Penfield, quite as if she had recelved more encouragement, "How are you feeling, Mr. Wopple?"

"Jest middlin'," he replied, in a dieaway voice. Ills small, bendy eyes were filmed for a moment, out of deference to this sentiment. He gazed at Mrs. Penfield with a new shrewdness which she would have sensed at once if she had been less occupied.

"I see Thad's got a new rig," continued Mr. Wopple, in the manner of one who delivers a preamble.

"Yes, bless the buby!" laughed Mrs. Penfield. "I finished that up last night. I'm sorry it's pink, 'cause it don't go with his hait the best ever, but that nice gingham couldn't go to

"I expect Thad's lacky to get as much's that." Mr. Wopple now began; on the main argument.

"Sure. She discarded a broken clothespin and reached into her pocket for another, .

"I guesa likely you almed to have folks think he was your own kid," insinunted Mr. Wopple, testing this strength of his old pruning-shears.

"Land, no. I never claimed he was He's mine cause I adopted him and love him, and 'cause he loves me, That's all there is to it." Mr. Wopple thought otherwise. "It's easy said, Mis' Penfield, but Til bet there's a lot more to it. Where'd you get Thad, Mls' Penfield?" With a quick movement she lifted the sheet and planed it loto place. "The records are for Thad when he grows up." "You got some records, then?"

"Mebbe," she returned, on guard, "I don't see what diff'rance it makes." "Well, I should say it made a lot. 'Course you'd want to know what kind o' folks he had. Might be things that'd crop out. You'd be the one to be disproduted if he was to turn out a robber or murderer or somen'n."

Mrs. Penfield shook out a white skirt and smiled, "All you got to do Mr. . Wopple, Is to look at Thad once and you won't talk that way. He's as sweet a baby as ever was, and there ain't nothing in his face that ain't good and dear. If he ever turns out bad, it won't be his fault; it'll be chuse I falled him."

Do you think you can remember that, Mr. Wopple?" Mr. Wopple, with some hesitation, admitted that perhaps he could, Mrs. Penfield having litherto heen a satisfactory neighbor; and she acknowledged his courtesy by a soile, half conciliatory, half obstructed. But when she had taken up the empty clothes basket and gone back into the house, she sat for several minutes lille, a mist of compassion in her dark eyes. Once her lips moved "Why, why can't I wipe out the handleaps entirely?" she 'breathed, "Don't seem right for any child-" She was still sitting there when

"Why, Penzie, ala't anything herejust you and me."

"Sure enough," she 'sald, more lightly. "And we mustn't sit here, doing nothing. I've got to get to work, and you trot along and play.' A few minutes later he came running to her in great glee,

"See, Penzle, I found somep'n." He held up a small package. It was flat, oblong, tled with cord. "Where dld you get that, Thad?"

"In your room-all done up in paper."

"You shouldn't have touched it-She took the package, to carry it back to her room; then paused in astonishment. The cords were fastened with wax; the seals had not been broken. She turned it over. It was soft to the touch. On une side was slimply the name "Bosley."

"That's never the family jewels," she thought, as she went into the bedroom. "Next time I'll let her keep "Shaw! More like it'd be somep'n it to home. I'll bet it ain't nothing want in this house.

In 1909 less than half a million square yards of concrete were Inid (perhaps fifty mlies), while in 1921 more than sixty million square yards wers laid (more than 7,000 miles).

One of the great advantages of concrete is the low cost of hauling, its aurface being less resistant to tractive effort than any we know. Dynamometer measurements show that the tractivo force regulred to move a wheeled ton of weight on a level road are, for concrete, 32.5 pounds; for asphalt, ?7.7 pounds; for brick, 51.8 pounds; and for earth, 134.7 pounds.

A taxl, companyy so situated that It drove one set of cars almost entirely on dirt roads and naother set almost eatirely on concrets roads, reports that it costs 2.4 cents less per mile to operate the taxis on the cement road than on the dirt roads.

There are 12,000,000 nutomobiles in the country. If they average the low amount of 3,000 mlles each per year, the total miles driven is 36,000,000 000. At 2 cents a mile saving, the sum of $720,000,000 a year could go towards building hard surface roads, which income would build 24,000 miles of permanent highways every

Low Earnings of the Western Railroads

The Interstate Commerce Commission made the following statements in its Report of October 11th, 1923 in the case which was brought to secure lower freight rates on grain, grain products and hay. The words enclosed thus () are inserted by us:

> "The (fair) rate of return as fixed by us is shown as 5.75 per cent, and the 1922 return of carriers in the Western Group averages less than 4 per cent. For the first four months of 1923, the average was about 4.1 per cent (on a yearly basis). (Later figures show that for the first eight months ending August 31st, 1923, the carnings of the Western Railroads were at the rate of 41/4 per cent per year.)"

> "Carriers in the Western Group have been and are now earning considerably less than the prescribed return, and apparently less than the fair return to which they are entitled under their constitutional rights entirely independent of Section 15 a (Transportation Act, 1920)."

> "Seemingly, from the record, it is improbable that a reduction in the present rates on the commodities in issue would so increase the movement of these commodities as to enable carriers to make up to any appreciable extent the loss in revenue should a general reduction in these rates be

> "Of prime importance to the agricultural industry and to the county in general, is an adequate and elficient transportation service. The extent to which a marked rate reduction would disable the carriers generally or particular carriers in the performance of this service is of great consequence."

The above statements by the Interstate Commerce Commission show that the present carnings of the grain carrying railroads of the West are low, and that these roads are not prespering at the expense of the farmer.
